Chapter 3:

Modern-Day: Shadows

God's plan for the Watchers, was to keep them underground until Judgement Day; but there is modern-day evidence that some, if not all, of the 200 Watchers may have found a way back into our reality. Clue number 1 is the abduction of human victims and the violation of their personal space -- without their permission. We have had to endure thousands of human abductions of innocent people throughout the world; forced to undergo medical and genetic examinations. A fascination with the reproduction of humans is eerily similar to the Watcher's interest in having intercourse with earthly women. Clue number 2 is the mutilation of animals (cows, sheep, deer, etc.) by removing rectal and facial tissue (with blood & internal organs) by means of a "cell separator" device that does not leave a drop of blood behind. Some seem to think that blood from animals (and their byproducts) could be used as a food source – or could even be used as a birthing solution for an artificial womb and the production of modern-day Nephilim. Clue number 3 is the most revealing and the most concerning piece of evidence; because this body of evidence leads one to recognize the existence of unseen intelligences within our reality. This so called Non-Human Intelligence (NHI) presence is better known as the “phenomenon”, an entity that makes itself known in many ways – sometimes frightening, humorous, curious, and even destructive.

The phenomenon seems to frequent military installations (around nuclear weapon sites), physical locations with abnormal electro-magnetic readings (causing compass malfunctions), and certain heart-thumping locations with a history of mysterious/horrific events. The phenomenon is likely to be the source of some other strange paranormal events; events like 1) disabling sensory collection devices positioned to prove its existence, 2) shapeshifting into a variety of wolf/man-like creatures, and 3) hitchhiking a ride, by attaching onto researchers investigating a paranormal event. Some say the phenomenon can reside inside a human, unbeknownst to the host.

Do these events prove the Watchers are free to roam the world? Do these anomalies suggest a NHI exists in our reality? Probably. The probability is very high that entities from other dimensions ‘cross-over’ into our dimension for various reasons, but only for constrained time durations.

But as the U.S. Pentagon has stated publicly, “...we do not know who these entities are, where they are from, and what they are doing here”. They may not know the answers to these questions, but the Department of Defense is very aware of a strange presence manifesting itself around the world, in ways that are not necessarily hostile, but are not beneficial either. We have heard it said by people that may have the answers; “You don’t want to know who these entities are and what they want from us, nor do you want to know -- what is their endgame?”.

Just because we cannot see, feel, smell, or taste something; does not mean it doesn’t exist. The truth is that we can only perceive those entities and events that increase our chances of survival in this ‘dog-eat-dog’ world. All of our senses have active filters, not to keep things from us, but to reduce the deluge of information washing over us every microsecond. Why? These limitations protect us from the overload of information (including other lifeforms), because ‘we can’t handle the truth’.

Researchers have begun using extremely high-speed cameras to record “proof of life” existing in shadow biospheres. The hypothesis stipulates that if there exists a lifeform in some adjacent biosphere, then certain photographic captures can yield proof of life. In addition to the video capture, one must demonstrate a causal reaction, proof the lifeform reacts and moves in-response to any stimulation intentionally generated by the researchers.

The key biochemical building block for both RNA and DNA in earthbound life is phosphorus, a relatively scarce element. If phosphorus were to be replaced with arsenic – the resultant bonding partners would produce a lifeform which might be invisible to our senses and could possibly be a distinct, parallel biosphere. “The shadow biosphere theory postulates that other forms of life may exist alongside known organisms but operate in ways we don’t recognize as life. Consider the Mono Lake microorganisms, which uses arsenic rather than phosphorus...”¹.

So where does this avant-garde, shadow thinking get us? It begins to teach us about invisible lifeforms that share earth with us and perhaps they were here before us. Like gods, observing us mature and grow into the Homo Sapiens Sapiens that we are – for a quarter of a million years. Since our planet has been functioning for almost 4 billion years; it has had plenty of opportunities to evolve as many as 16 human lifespans, within startups and extinctions – let’s conservatively estimate at least two survivors: us and them. We know that our sensory input system is extremely limited and prevents us from knowing about the shadow world, but we do not know about the limitations of their sensory system – maybe their sensory systems are better adapted.

If you buy that – then you are obligated to buy the fact that the invisible world has more than likely happened elsewhere in the Universe and that those shadow citizens can “come & go” to checkup on our world – or visit our indigenous shadow citizens. You need to consider one last wrinkle in this shadow story – the spiritual world. Yes, I mean angels, demons, and even God. Before you rip this text to shreds, what was just said is not blasphemous; but totally reasonable. The Holy Bible tells us of a place we cannot see and beings that are supernatural and are here to protect us.

Afterall, we have been discussing fallen angels and their hybrid offspring – the Nephilim. The angels must certainly qualify as citizens of a shadow biosphere – not human. Angels are invisible (unless they want you to see them) and certainly are supernatural – with immortal powers.

The giants are a separate case, because these sons of angels, these half-breeds, were fully involved in the lives of our ancient ancestors. Hence, the Nephilim were residents of our biosphere, that transitioned from bloodlines within a shadow biosphere. Exactly how that transition occurred may never be known, but it is a fascinating connection that exists between two biospheres. But the ‘men of renown’ were purged from the earth with the Great Flood and should no longer be players in this scenario.

The Watchers on the other hand, seem to have escaped their underground confinement and are ‘running wild’ across our land – looking for mischief. Could they possibly be interested in creating modern-day Nephilim? Wouldn’t they try to utilize God’s perfect seed (again) to poison the God’s perfect DNA molecule. What would they do – abduct humans and take possession of their reproductive capabilities. Then what, inseminate eggs to create embryos with modified genes – the result being hybrids humans? What if these hybrids could enter the earth's population base and not be detected. What if these unseen 'demons' eventually intermingled their hybrids with unsuspecting humans to enshrine their seed throughout every human on earth?
