

Nephilim Among Us

Modern Day Giants

David R. Fashenpour

Chapter 3:

The Abductions

In previous chapters, I described the history of Nephilim and Watchers as revealed through the writings of Enoch and Moses. Those ancient holy men created a mosaic of revelations about those days of old which have been cross-checked, logically connected, and fully documented in this book. Also discussed in previous chapters is the fact that, while Nephilim can be neutralized, the Watchers can only be confined underground, and 200 of them have been in isolation for hundreds of years. God and His creation (humanity) have faced these renegade rebels since time immemorial, but their confinement period has run out. It follows, then, that the Watchers (along with their Nephilim offspring) are present in our modern world.

Decades of ridicule have forced the average citizen to turn a blind eye toward anything related to UFOs. But recently, with a name change to UAP and new Congressional Investigations, attention has finally focused on lights in the sky. However, Congressional inquiries and mainstream reports rarely acknowledge that 1) thousands of humans are being abducted against their will every year to harvest their reproductive organs; 2) thousands of artificially conceived non-humans are being grown and integrated into society, and 3) animals are regularly and cruelly being killed and mutilated. This is a sad continuation of the same Biblical story of the Watchers, who rebelled against God and mated with human women, producing Nephilim in the days of old.

Some Nephilim can be spotted because of their large size as attested to in Biblical accounts: the Giant of Kandahar, as I mentioned in the last chapter, is one modern example. However, most Nephilim look quite different today. In the ‘days of old,’ the Nephilim Giants were easily identified, but, this time, the Nephilim are walking undetected among us. They have been transformed by genetic engineering into normal-looking humans, e.g., politicians, police, teachers, military, friends, businessmen, doctors, clergy, and so on—until we cannot tell the difference between us and them.

NEPHILIM-HUMAN HYBRID

In a world where the boundaries of reality are continuously challenged, where the skies hold mysteries beyond our comprehension, and where the laws of physics seem to bend, a profound revelation awaits those who dare to peer into the enigmatic abyss of the unknown.

Before we proceed, it should be noted that the covering up of giant skeletons has occurred in every nation, since time has begun and each time the evidence is evidently lost or destroyed.

Kim LaCapria, a former writer for Snopes, penned an article published December 17, 2014, debunking the destruction of thousands of giant skeletons, titled: “Did the Smithsonian Destroy Thousands of Giant Human Skeletons”? LaCapria commits several *ad hominem*s in this article and fails to address the issues that cannot be accounted for by hoaxes, like the large number of Native American circular burial mounds for giants, throughout North America. Likewise, LaCapria fails to mention the explosion of newspaper articles in the U.S. from the 1900s claiming that skeletons of giants were being discovered in almost in every city. Why does this so-called debunking feel like the “decades of ridicule” forced onto UFO researchers? Maybe the cover up of giant skeletons and UFOs are related, as is the phenomena.

Whether we call them UFOs, UAPs, ORBs, or any other name, these entities defy the very principles of Newtonian physics, and they shatter our conventional notions of the physical world. The existence of these ships is marked by extraordinary, “non-physical” traits that transcend the limitations of our reality. Here are a few hypotheses of how these craft can operate outside of a Newtonian physical paradigm:

- An entity can harness Anti-Gravity technology, which defies gravity's grasp without visible wings or engines.

- An entity can achieve Infinite Acceleration, which allows it to hurtle to unimaginable speeds in the blink of an eye.
- An entity can possess Hypersonic Silence, which allows it to move at supersonic velocities without leaving behind a sonic boom.
- An entity can be cloaked from detection, which means it is capable of vanishing from sight at will.
- An entity can be a trans-medium entity, or one that is able to seamlessly traverse the realms of space, air, and water.

What are we to make of UFO craft—which encapsulate all of these features to some degree? In this context, we ought to confront the profound possibility that these entities hail from a dimension beyond our own: a dimension we can only describe as supernatural or spiritual. These extradimensional beings defy our moral judgments, as they range from benevolent spirits to malevolent forces. Their values are not ours; their morals are not ours; and their goals certainly are not ours.

To discern the intentions of these entities, we must examine their actions: the projects they undertake, the results they seek, and their ultimate objectives. It is through their deeds that we glimpse the essence of their existence, not through their appearance or mystical powers.

Encounters with these entities often lead to unsettling outcomes. We can classify them as either benevolent spirits, akin to angels or messengers, or malevolent forces, like demons or even The Dragon. Malevolent entities invariably seek to sever our connection with God and Jesus Christ: a telltale sign of their dark intentions.

But, why do these extraordinary phenomena manifest more frequently in specific regions of the world, such as Equatorial Brazil, France, and Alaska? Could there be a connection between the occult practices of certain countries and their susceptibility to UFO sightings, abductions, and unexplained phenomena?

Two possibilities emerge:

1. Occult-practicing individuals may be more attuned to supernatural stimuli, inviting such encounters.
2. Entities from other dimensions may seek out individuals open to contact, regardless of their beliefs.

While the occult connection is not conclusively documented, the prevalence of these events in various global regions suggests that extradimensional travelers play a pivotal role in these phenomena.

The question then arises: how do these travelers navigate the thin veil between dimensions? The answer lies in the concept of a Portal: a gateway through which entities pass, bridging the divide between worlds. The appearance of these Portals remains elusive, though, with claims of discovery met by intrigue and skepticism.

But, amidst these mysteries, another revelation comes forth: the true nature of the entities conducting human abductions. Contrary to popular beliefs, they are not benign extraterrestrial visitors seeking genetic material for benevolent purposes.

Commonly held explanations for this phenomenon suggest that UFOs, shining orbs in the sky, instances of animal mutilation, and cases of human abduction are all part of an “innocent” project undertaken by grey extraterrestrial beings (“Greys”) hailing from the nearby binary star system known as Zeta Reticula—located approximately 39 light years away. Advocates of this hypothesis assert that Greys need experimental human genetic material. Notably, advocates of the benevolent Greys from Zeta Reticula hypothesis seem to ignore the role animal mutilation plays in the supposedly “innocent” project of human sperm and ovum harvesting.

According to this conventional narrative, the Zetas are facing the dire predicament of a declining race, and they believe that the genetic material obtained from Earth has the potential to provide a remedy for their ailment. This interpretation further posits that the Zetas are in the process of creating hybridized beings—half-human, half-alien—by utilizing the sperm and ovum of abductees—although the purpose behind these hybrid creatures remains uncertain. Are the Greys from Zeta Reticula attempting to address a genetic problem within their own species, or are they simply procreating non-human entities to further some enigmatic objective, much like the Watchers did in ancient times during the Seed War?

SABER AVATAR

Deep within the classified recesses of the highly secret Project Aquarius—the part of the US government which interfaces with UFOs—a covert name for the artificial lifeform has been leaked. The compartmentalized code name is “SABER”: an acronym standing for “Synthetic Astro-Biological Extraterrestrial Races.” SABER refers to those enigmatic beings known as Greys. Greys are not aliens, contrary to popular belief, but rather advanced androids: anomalies of artificial organic life. In short, Greys are biological machines. Notably, Greys transcend the boundaries of physics and they are capable of passing through solid matter and existing in their own space-time.

SABERs engage in human abductions: they gently (and sometimes not so gently) float individuals from their surroundings during slumber all the while inducing a state of sleep paralysis. These abductions serve a purpose, but they are not malevolent in intent, according to the proponents of the benevolent Greys from Zeta Reticula hypothesis. SABERs assure their subjects that no harm will befall them – but are they speaking the truth? No, they are not. The SABER robots adhere to the Dragon’s commands: assuming various appearances like reptilian beings, tall humans, and more. They guide the SABER Avatars in gathering human material and delivering it for processing and cellular development.

Actions, not appearances, define these entities. In the case of SABERs, their actions involve genetic manipulation to create hybrid creatures that masquerade as humans. These produced Nephilim, born of deception, blended seamlessly into our society, concealing their true nature behind human exteriors.

The progeny that is being generated by ‘Greys’ should not be misconstrued as the ‘adorable infants’ presented to those who have been abducted, which is meant either for rejection or affection. These offspring serve as nothing more than a diversion—diverting attention away from the evident truth: the actual hybrid entity, one that bears an uncanny human resemblance but possesses the essence of a Nephilim.

Much like the ancient Watchers once ensured the creation of a substantial number of Nephilim giants during the Seed War, with the intention of undermining God’s flawless creation, this strategy has been adapted for contemporary times. These new Nephilim entities defy easy identification as non-human beings. For, concealed beneath their human exteriors, lie the same enduring objectives of avarice, desire, and destructive intent synonymous with Nephilim.

As we ponder the existence of these entities, one question lingers: Where is the army of Nephilim, born from countless abductions over these past 80 years? Could they be hiding in plain sight, interwoven into our lives—indistinguishable from the rest of humanity?

Robert Bigelow, a prominent figure in aerospace and UFO research, suggests that the Nephilim live among us, camouflaged in society's fabric. "They're walking among us; they live right here," Bigelow states to his interviewer James Fox. Identifying the Nephilim proves nearly impossible, for they are "in plain sight" and share our appearance.

In this tapestry of the extraordinary that borders on the science fiction, we are left with an unsettling truth: that beings of extraordinary capabilities and concealed intentions may walk among us, undermining us—leaving us to grapple with the profound questions that linger in the realm of the unknown.
